1. This week's Friday lecture: Life in Angkor beyond the elites NEW

Heng

Archaeologist Piphall Heng (Ph.D. anthropology/archaeology, University of Hawaii-Manoa, 2018) will present "The People of Angkor: An Archaeological Inquiry of Life in Angkor," at noon Friday in the (Note: new location for all February lectures) Asian American Center Resource Center, 375 Wirtz Drive (rear of Health Services Building. Heng, who is a visiting scholar at NIU this year as the recipient of the 2019 Robert H. N. Ho Family Foundation Postdoctoral Fellowship in Buddhist Studies, researches the archeological evidence of people living in and near the temples and cities of Angkorian civilization--those who built the great monuments of Angkor but whose names rarely appear in written records that typically focus on the royal court and elites. To order an Indonesian lunch, submit an online request by 6 p.m. Wednesday at CSEAS Brown Bag Order. To cancel an order, you must do so online by 10 a.m. Friday. Cost is $5 for students and $7 for faculty, staff and others. You may pay in cash or by check at the lecture. For details, e-mail cseasbrownbag@gmail.com. All lectures are free and open to the public; see spring schedule.

2. Special Wednesday lecture: The ordinary in Thai temple murals; library exhibit NEW

Johnson

Irving Chan Johnson, Harvard-trained anthropologist and traditional Thai illustrator from the National University of Singapore (NUS), will present "Looking at the Ordinary in Traditional Thai Painting: Reflections on Agency and Personhood" in a special CSEAS lecture at noon Feb. 19 in Campus Life 100. Johnson is on campus this week to give a five-day evening workshop, which began Monday, on the art of traditional Thai illustration. In his talk, Johnson, a mural painter at a Thai Buddhist temple in Singapore and an associate professor at NUS, will explore images of ordinariness one finds in Thai temple mural painting. Johnson will discuss how subjective understandings of cultural and political identities can be located in depictions of ordinary life found in temple murals. Sponsored by the Thai Teaching and Research Endowment Fund and organized by the NIU Thai language program and CSEAS. For details, email kanjana@niu.edu.

A new exhibit on Thai temple murals is on display in the Donn V. Hart Southeast Asia Collection in Founders Memorial Library, in conjunction with the visit this week of Thai temple mural artist Irving Chan Johnson. There are also photos of murals from the temples in Northeastern Thailand online through the Southeast Asia Digital Library.

3. Sign up now for SEA summer study abroad programs

NIU and CSEAS are offering two opportunities to study abroad for credit next summer in Vietnam and Cambodia. The deadline to apply to the Vietnam program has been extended (see below). Learn more about studying abroad at a Study Abroad 101 workshop, held at 3:30 p.m. once a week in the NIU Study Abroad office, 417 Williston. Contact engage@niu.edu. For details on these programs, email program directors, niuabroad@niu.edu, or CSEAS at cseas@niu.edu.

- Vietnam: War and Peace in Vietnam, June 15–July 7, is a month-long program that includes six days of on-campus study before and after a 12-day study tour to Vietnam. Led by Associate History Professor Stanley Arnold, the program focuses on the American experience in Vietnam and examines the impact of the war on Vietnam, the region and the world. You will visit Hanoi, Hue, Ho Chi Minh City, Khe Sanh, My Lai and other historical sites, and interact with local communities. Three undergraduate and three graduate courses are offered: HIST 396, HIST 469, HIST 493, HIST 569, HIST 600 and HIST 736; six hours credit. Deadline to apply: Feb. 17. For details, contact Arnold at sarnold@niu.edu.

Hanoi

- Cambodia: Cambodian Culture and Civilization, June 8–26, is an immersive three-week program offering a global and cultural perspective on rural and urban cultures in Cambodia. You will spend two weeks in Siem Reap and one week in the capital city of Phnom Penh, including the Angkor Wat temple complex in Siem Reap, Buddhist temples, and Cambodian Genocide historical sites. You will attend lectures on politics, sociology, language, the environment, archaeology and culture and dance at the Center for Khmer Studies in Siem Reap. The program also includes service learning, meaningful community engagement and immersion in Khmer culture. Undergraduate and graduate courses offered include SEAS 225, SEAS 590, and INTL 201 and 501; six hours credit. Deadline to apply: March 1. On-site directors are sociologist Kathleen Westman and Sauk Valley Community College political science professor Paul Edleman. For more information, contact Westman at kwestman911@gmail.com.

Center for Khmer Studies, Siem Reap

4. Applications re-opened: Dwight Y. King Graduate Scholarship

International students pursuing advanced degrees involving substantial Indonesia research are invited to apply for the 2020–21 Dwight Y. King Graduate Scholarship for the Study of Indonesia. Applicants for this $1,000 award should be a student in good standing and at an advanced stage in their master's or doctoral program. In keeping with King's lifelong commitment to public affairs, preference given to students interested in working in developing countries. Application must include a personal statement, research proposal, PDF of graduate transcript and a letter of recommendation. Deadline to apply: Feb. 28. For details, see CSEAS website.

5. SEA performing and visual arts take center stage April 4

As part of NIU's 125th Anniversary this year, CSEAS is hosting a Southeast Asia Performing Arts Showcase and exhibit of contemporary Burmese art April 4 in Boutell Memorial Concert Hall and the adjacent Whitney Gallery. The showcase will be from 3 to 4:30 p.m., preceded by the opening of "Looking at Women in Contemporary Burma," an exhibit of Burmese artists, at 2 p.m. The program will cover a wide range of SEA performing arts, from wayang kulit (Indonesian shadow puppetry) to Thai and Indonesian music and dance, capped by a world premiere of a percussion piece by Cambodian composer Chinary Ung and audience participation in playing the Indonesian bamboo instrument, the angklung. The program is free and open to the public, with funding provided by the NIU 125th Anniversary Project and the U.S. Department of Education..

6. Sign up to be a 'home-bassador' for spring youth exchange programs NEW

Area families have been hosting youth exchange students from Southeast Asia for one-to two-week homestays for more than 16 years.

CSEAS is actively seeking homestay hosts in April for two Southeast Asia youth exchange programs that have brought talented students and young adults to NIU for leadership development training for 16 years. This engaging cultural opportunity, lasting between one week and two weeks, is open to families and individuals.

CSEAS is looking for 30 households to host 50 high school students and 10 adult leaders from ten Southeast Asian countries for the Southeast Asia Youth Leadership Program (SEAYLP) April 10–17. Students are placed in pairs while adults may be placed in pairs or as singles. Hosts provide a bed for each participant, breakfast each day and most dinners, all meals during any weekend days at home, and transportation to and from class sessions at NIU. See the SEAYLP website for program details and online application. For more information, contact Host Family Coordinator Sky Emken at familycoordinator.sky@gmail.com or SEAYLP Administrative Director Anastasia Kocher at akocher1@niu.edu.

CSEAS is also seeking host families for the Philippine Youth Leadership Program (PYLP), which for 16 years has brought young people and adult leaders from the Autonomous Region of Muslim Mindanao and surrounding provinces in the Philippines to NIU for four weeks of leadership and conflict resolution training. As with SEAYLP, students are placed in pairs and adult leaders in pairs or as singles. PYLP homestay dates for PYLP are April 12–27. See the PYLP website or contact Host Family Coordinator Nancy Melms at nsteckelbergmelms@niu.edu for details.

The U.S. Department of State Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs funds both SEAYLP and PYLP.

7. Historian to keynote April 18 Spring SEA Studies Student Conference

Hawkins

The Southeast Asia Club will host its Spring Southeast Asian Studies Student Conference Saturday, April 18, at the Holmes Student Center. The keynote speaker will be Creighton University historian and NIU alumnus Michael Hawkins (Ph.D. history, 2009). A former Fulbright Fellow to the Philippines, Hawkins is the author of Making Moros: Imperial Historicism and American Military Rule in the Philippine Muslim South (Northern Illinois University Press, 2012) and the forthcoming Semi-Civilized: The Moro Village at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition (Cornell University Press). Awards will be given for best undergraduate and graduate papers. The deadline for those who wish to submit final papers for judging is March 15. Email to niuseaconference@gmail.com. The Graduate Colloquium is co-sponsoring Hawkins' visit to NIU.
